

DESIGN FOR WORKSPACE : COLLABORATION

One of our clients, a behavioral health company located in Deerfield Beach employing 227 in 3 locations, is 6th in Sun Sentinel Awards for 2015 Top Workplaces!

Healthy organizations thrive on people who feel connected to their workplaces through meaningful work, productive work environments and the belief their companies are moving in the right direction. Executives are challenged to create a sense of connection between company and employee and often operate by a strong set of values. Organizations have started paying more emphasis on managing the performance of their employees, fulfilling their comfort needs by providing them an effective workplace environment that also helping them to attract and retain the talent. The H3Design design team is proud of this ongoing relationship. Through close collaboration with the client and manufactures we have been very cognizant of the factors involved in creating healthy productive environments for the employees as well as the customers. Workplace design improves performance.

According to Sundstrom, (1994) (as cited in Hameed and Amjad 2009), majority of people spend 50% of their lives within indoor environments, which greatly influence their mental status, actions, abilities and performance. (Carnevale 1992, Clements-Croome 1997) (as cited in Hameed and Amjad 2009), highlighted that better outcomes and increased productivity can achieved through better workplace environment. The findings suggested that improvement in physical design of office building may result in 5% to 10% increases in productivity. The work environment is an effective tool to attract and retain employees.
